5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

A YOUNG lady of Hartford has married a Chinaman who was a student there in 1874. Some of those Chinese students became fairly Americanized during their stay in this country, but on their return to China, when they attempted to put on foreign airs, they were quickly reminded that they were still Chinamen and when in China would have to do as the Chinese do. If this young bride goes to China with her husband she may find the best of reasons to regret her rashness. Even should he choose to remain in this country, the question naturally arises, whether she could not find a Caucasian husband that she must go outside of her race and color. Science and experience declare that the three great races—white, black and yellow—should keep by themselves. There is no accounting for tastes, says the Bulletin, and no law against marriage between whites and Chinese, but it is well to develop a wholesome public opinion on the subject. In California, where the Chinese are best known, that opinion is already established. In the East it is hardly yet definitely formed, unless, it may be, within the influence of Mott street. It seems to be forgotten that the Chinese are polygamists and slaveholders. They are usually betrothed in infancy. The American wife drops to the position of concubine in China. She can be sold when her lord and master tires of her. At his death she becomes the slave of his parents.

THE new Springfield rifle bayonet is both a bayonet and ramrod, sixteen inches long and a quarter of an inch in diameter and is set in place by a spring. One of the South American delegates, while visiting the Armory at Springfield the other day, drove one of these murderous needles through a two-inch plank. But, after all, what particular use is a bayonet in modern warfare? Even in the war of 1861-5 there is no authentic account of a dozen men having been killed by the bayonet. With guns firing accurately from 1,200 yards upward, the result is that either a charging column does not live to use the bayonet, or the line charged will cease to exist before the assault gets down to hand to hand work. The bayonet may give the soldier a little more confidence, but in point of fact it is not used in modern war very much more than an officer's sword.

AN unconfirmed report says that Secretary Tracy will recommend that no new navy yard be established on the Pacific Coast, but that the Mare Island Yard be enlarged and improved to meet any emergency. There will be no particular need for a Northern yard for many years, and by that time we may possibly have inherited the Requin-malt establishment. Meantime Mare Island should be prepared to build anything wanted in the way of either ships or guns to secure our naval preponderance in the Pacific.

HE TOOK THE WRONG MEDICINE.
Robert Stewart, of Petaluma, recently had a queer experience. He writes: "Carbuncles and boils afflicted my face and neck for weeks. I finally procured a bottle of one of the leading sarsaparillas. To my surprise it made matters worse. This made me lose faith in sarsaparillas, but being a statement that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla dried up boils and free capillary blood, forcing movement in the blood, sarsaparillas do, I bought a bottle. The effect was astonishing. The carbuncles and boils began to dry up, and in two weeks my face was as well and smooth as ever. My brother also took a bottle with the same benefit. ROBERT STEWART, Petaluma, Cal."

A Health Report.
Dr. G. Tyrrell, Secretary of the California State Board of Health, in his forthcoming report speaks quite forcibly against the immigration of diseased persons, especially consumptives, to the State. He says there is a great danger of contagion from consumption. Dr. Tyrrell says that intestinal disorders prevail to a considerable extent in the State, and a marked increase of respiratory affections is apparent in counties bordering on the coast and in higher altitudes.

CHINESE GAMBLERS.

A Description of Fan Tan as Played by the Fictitious of Los Angeles.
Fan Tan is a very simple game and is very fair. There seems to be no opportunity to cheat. The dealer, says the Los Angeles American, takes his seat on the bench and opens the game. He is a thick-set Chinaman, with a broad and repulsive face. He wears a dull and sleepy expression from excessive opium-smoking, but he is far from stupid. He conducts himself with great dignity, and looks with a haughty glance at the wash-men and gamblers who crowd about the board, anxiously waiting for the game to open.

He takes a bag of "cash" from the pocket of his blouse and draws a long, tapering wand from the ample folds of his sleeve. He draws from another pocket a metal cover which looks like the cover of a butter dish. All these he places on the matting which covers the table. In the middle of the table just under the gas jet is a square painted on the matting. The lamp or gas jet is covered with a tin screen which shields the eyes of the dealer and throws the rays of light directly on the center of the table. This is the only light in the room. The effect is a peculiar one. The dealer opens his bag and empties his pile of cash on the table. He takes a handful from it and places them on the matting square, and all other corners lose. Then with the metal cover referred to. The bets are then made, the money wagered being placed on the different corners of the square. The dealer then takes up his long wand, and with a point dexterously draws out four coins at a time. The number left after he has drawn out the last four "cash" that can be drawn from the pile determines the disposition of the bets. If one coin or "cash" is left, corner number one wins; if two "cash" are left, corner number two wins; if three "cash" corner number three wins; and if four are left, corner number four wins and all other corners lose. The players bet against the bank, the winners getting one for one and the losers losing, of course.

Fan Tan is simply betting on the equalization of coins.
There are, of course, rules governing the game, by which bets are made conditional. These bets are signified by "coppering," if that term may be used, by strips of red leather and black and white beans. When a wager is made and a large sum is staked, it is the custom to roll up the money and place it in a blind bet. If the bet should win, the cashier of the game counts the money and gives the player an equal sum, and, if it loses, the cash is dumped into the capital of the game.

"ONLY" A REPORTER.

How Sorely the Most Patient of All Newspaper Workers Are Misjudged.

Although the writings of newspaper men are more generally read than those of any other class of writers, says the New York Press, it is safe to say that people know less of those bright young and old men than about the followers of any other trade or profession. This, perhaps, is but natural, for reporters, and most editors, are but little to the outside world. The columns which are the medium through which other men become famous, how many people are there in New York who would never have succeeded, yes, more, would never have heard of, outside of an exceedingly limited circle of acquaintances, had they not been shrewd enough to utilize their friendship to the reporters. A notable example of this is the case of the little police judge whose name appears in the New York papers more than that of any other person. From the stories published about this little judge one would imagine that for wit and learning he is unsurpassed. The fact is that the police reporters are responsible for most of the wit accredited to him, and that he is far from being learned. The whole secret is that the "judge" knows how to treat his friends the reporters. Hundreds of instances might be added to this. Again, how sorely reporters are misjudged. The popular idea is that they are rather shabby, obtrusive and unscrupulous fellows. This idea is changing, however, and people are beginning to believe that New York newspaper men include in their number gentlemen of high culture. Still, there is too much of the old idea remaining. Here is a case in hand. A city editor of one of the big dailies had occasion to introduce into a somewhat select New York family an intimate and dear friend of his. The editor's friends were charmed with the young man and spoke of him afterward in the highest terms. Later they learned that he was a reporter. One of the young ladies on hearing this said: "You do not mean to say, Mr. S., that Mr. B. is only a reporter?" The intonation upon the "only" so disgusted Mr. S. that he never called upon the young lady again. Mr. B. is now one of the editors of a big New York daily. Besides, not only is he a graduate of Harvard College and law school, but he is a gentleman in every sense of the word, and a member of one of the most prominent families in the city. Of course there are exceptions to every rule, and it is to be regretted that there are still some scoundrelly fellows engaged upon the staffs of leading papers. They are, however, day by day, growing beautifully less.

THE Blues and Melancholy.
Cheerfulness and occupation are closely allied. Idle men are rarely happy. How should they be? The brain and the muscles were made for action and neither can be healthy without vigorous exercise. Into the lazy brain crawl spider-like fancies, filling it with cobwebs that shut out the light and make it a fit abode for "loathed melancholy." It invites the stout handmaid, brisk and busy thought, into the intellectual chamber, and she will soon brush away such unwelcome tenants. Blasted be work whether it be of the head or the hand, or both. It demolishes Chimera as effectively as Hellerophon, backed by the goddess of Wisdom, disposed of the original monster of that name.

What Caused the Noddy.
"Is that the bell of the scissors-grinder outside?" asks Broughne. "No," replied his wife. "You hear Mamie's bangle-bracelet. She's up-stairs."

Musical instruments, from the finest pianos to a harmonica, can be found at Brookins' Variety Store. He also keeps violin, banjo and guitar strings.

The crowd to be found at J. J. Becker's at noon time shows the consequence of a hot lunch, without being obliged to walk half a dozen blocks for it.

The Riverside Hotel is where you can always obtain an airy and well-lighted room, a good bed and the most palatable meal you ever ate in the town.

George Becker's Pacific beer is acknowledged by all good judges to be equal to any brew to be had anywhere, and his hot-soup lunches are an actual luxury.

Blank books, from the smallest pocket diary to the largest ledger, can be had at C. A. Thurston's news depot as cheap as in any retail establishment on the coast.

People in need of any style of house furniture should not fail to examine E. C. Sessions' stock and prices. He does not try to realize a fortune from the sale of a single set.

By leaving orders with J. M. Fulton at the N. C. & O. R. R. office he will have first class mahogany, oak or pine wood, either in bulk or split, delivered to your house. Scrap of Paper saves Her Life.
It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle. It helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought an other and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For further particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, druggist, 20 Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful discovery free at S. J. Hodgkinson's.

Euppey.
This is what you ought to have, in fact, you must have it, to fully enjoy life. Thousands are searching for it daily and mourning because they find it not. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are spent annually by our people in the hope that they may attain this boon. And yet it may be had by all. We guarantee the Electric Bitters, if used according to directions and the use persisted in, will bring you good digestion, and cure dyspepsia, and install instead Euppey. We recommend Electric Bitters for dyspepsia and all diseases of Liver, Stomach and Kidneys. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle by S. J. Hodgkinson, druggist.

There is but little, if any danger from whooping cough, when the cough is kept loose and expectation easy, which can always be done by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no injurious substance. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

The Best There Is.
A new typewriter has been invented by the party who invented half of the Remington and all of the Caligraph. It has no ribbon, no wooden bars, but is all steel, prints true and without any blur. It costs an even hundred dollars, and is worth two of any other machine. It prints better, wears longer, is easier to learn and works faster, besides other recommendations. C. A. BRAGG, Agent.

Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than those of sickness. The young mother vividly remembers, that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured her of the croup, and in turn administered it to her own offspring and always with the best success. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Advice to Mothers.
Mrs. WINDLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 173

HUMBOLDT NEWS.

Beef Cattle Shipment—Convicted of Murder.
The Winnemucca Silver State of the 13th inst. says: A drove of about 600 head of beef cattle is being driven here from Peter French's ranch in Harney county, Oregon, for shipment to San Francisco.

The case of Jimmie Shaw, indicted for murder, was given to the jury yesterday afternoon, and in less than an hour they found a verdict of murder in the second degree. This was probably the best thing that could happen for the defendant, as the feeling among the Indians in Paradise Valley is so strongly against him that he would be killed should he go back, or be even set at liberty here. The penalty for murder in the second degree is imprisonment from ten years to life. He will be sentenced probably on Friday.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY.

This Excellent Company to Appear at McKinnick's Next Wednesday.
Little Lord Fauntleroy is a charm in Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett's charming little story. To say that the play is a gem would be telling but half the truth. This child of fiction held large audiences in Boston, New York and San Francisco spell bound for many nights, and they are sure of having a crowded house here. The box sheet will open next Saturday, so you will want to be on time.

At the meeting of the five academies which form the Institute of France, the Comte de Franqueville, in his paper, said: "I wager that the political women will eventually win the day."

Patti Ross.

Patti Ross played to a fine audience last night. There is not much to the play of "Bob," but the little lady makes every point count in her favor. Her support was very good.

Bolls and pimples and other affections arising from impure blood may appear at this season, when the blood is heated. Hood's Sarsaparilla removes the cause of these troubles by purifying, vitalizing, and enriching the blood, and at the same time gives strength to the whole system.

F. G. Newlands' new house and office, on the South Side, is nearing completion. It is in a slightly place, and when Mr. Newlands improves the grounds, it will be one of the loveliest places in town.

The W. C. T. U., at their regular meeting on Tuesday, offered the following resolution: That our thanks be tendered to the citizens of Reno and vicinity for their constant attendance and valuable financial and otherwise, during the series of lectures given by Major George A. Hilton last week. A. C. Sessions, Secretary.

A FORMIDABLE POWER.

The Present Military Strength of France.

It appears that the total strength of French troops which can be made immediately available for massing on the frontier, is put at, officers and men, 750,000; guns, 2,100; horses, 243,468; carriages, 40,907.

These troops can be concentrated in six days. After sending them to the front there will still remain at the depots 278,724 fully trained men, 325,416 men with one year's training, 208,740 men who had been trained with the reserve, and 492,314 available for employment as non-combatants.

A final result of calculation shows that if war were now declared, France could put no less than five armies into the field of 200,000 men each, and supported by ample reserves; five times the strength which Napoleon III placed in the field in 1870.

A Nose Made to Order.

Mrs. Hoffman of Brooklyn has just had a new nose made for her at the Long Island College Hospital. The bridge of her nose had been destroyed by disease. The surgeon raised the skin that formerly covered it and divided it lengthwise, and then inserted a breastbone just removed from a live chicken, with the cartilaginous filament and periosteum adhering to it. The skin was then drawn over the bone and sewed, and the doctor thinks that in a short time Mrs. Hoffman's nose will be as good as anybody's.

American Ideas Introduced.

The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's American wife has had many alterations made in the interior of the fine old house at Highbury, near Birmingham, and, so the gossips say, has successfully introduced several American ideas and features identified with luxurious housekeeping.

Ill Winds.

That blow "nobody any good" are plenty on the storm-vexed Atlantic, to say nothing of the occasionally typhoon-swept Pacific. The hapless voyager, when shaken up by the heaving of the "bilby," should take that pleasant and most salutary of dyes, a wineglassful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest stomachic and tonic that ever was concocted, and quieted the human interior, railroad jolts and steamship shaken travelers will exercise a wise prudence by supplying themselves with a sufficiency of this incomparable medicine for the journey. It will maintain, emigrate to the West, and others about to visit fresh fields and pastures new. Malaria, the scourge of newly cleared and malarial districts, is completely conquered and surely averted by the Bitters. Liver, bowel and kidney complaint and indigestion rheumatism it annihilates.

Croup Can be Prevented.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. There is no quack about this; as it has been done in thousands of cases, and you may depend upon it that when a child takes the croup, it is owing to the negligence of its parents. True croup never appears without due and timely warning; a few hours, or a day before the attack, the child becomes coughy. This coughiness is the first indication of croup, and is a sure sign that croup is to follow, unless promptly and properly treated. The free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will insure with certainty the averaging "to prevent croup" will disappear, and the child will be free of all symptoms of the disease. For a full and complete description of the disease, see the following:

THE OLD DINNER HORN.

When the 'taters are in blossom an' the
sells on the corn,
An' the special temptations are bluish like
the morn,
When the beans are young an' tender an' the
sage an' the beet
An' the cucumber an' cabbages are big
enough to eat,
When the yellow-legged chicken's tried in butter, 'to a turn,
An' corn pone's hot, an' buttermilk's jest
expiring,
Oh, it's then I love the music o' the tootin'
dinner-horn;
When the 'taters are in blossom an' the tassels
on the corn,
When the scorchin' sun o' summer pours down
on a feller's head,
'Till he thinks 'bout 'n' straw stack an' the
meddler's painted red,
When the dusty sweat's a pourin' down his
face into his eyes,
An' the taters are a buzzin' like a pantry
full of bees,
There's a mighty feelin' question like, a gas-
tronomical 'why,'
Foolin' 'round about his buzzum nothin' else
can satisfy,
Like the appetizin' music of the tootin' dinner-
horn;
When the 'taters are in blossom an' the tassels
on the corn.

Buckwheat cakes an' tree molasses are a mighty luscious sight,
An' 'tater 'n' ham an' eggs an' biscuits,
hot an' light,
An' roast sparrin' an' sweet potatoes baked
with sausage meat;
But buttermilk an' garden sass is mighty hard
to beat,
An' when a feller's empty from his buzzum to
his boots,
They's a sight o' hally loover in the satisfyin'
toots.
Of the women-folks a 'blowin' on the old tin
dinner-horn;
When the 'taters are in blossom an' the tassels
on the corn,

A GAME OF CARDS.

Disastrous Results of an Uncontrollable Fascination.

It was a handsome room, in the Fairwood plantation house, a room all slight with brilliant chandeliers and lamps, which cast their radiance over the luxurious furniture, and brought out every fold in the heavy crimson curtains, every tint in the dark, rich carpet which covered the floor. A blazing wood fire was in the large, open fireplace, and whenever it showed signs of dying out, a colored man, who was seated on a stool in the center of the room, and around it were seated four gentlemen absorbed in a game of cards. On a side-table were silver trays, containing cut-glass decanters full of liquor, goblets, cold game, a venison patty, olives, anchovies, and all the luxurious accessories of a choice supper.

meddler's painted red,
When the dusty sweat's a pourin' down his
face into his eyes,
An' the taters are a buzzin' like a pantry
full of bees,
There's a mighty feelin' question like, a gas-
tronomical 'why,'
Foolin' 'round about his buzzum nothin' else
can satisfy,
Like the appetizin' music of the tootin' dinner-
horn;
When the 'taters are in blossom an' the tassels
on the corn.

THE OLD DINNER HORN.

When the 'taters are in blossom an' the
sells on the corn,
An' the special temptations are bluish like
the morn,
When the beans are young an' tender an' the
sage an' the beet
An' the cucumber an' cabbages are big
enough to eat,
When the yellow-legged chicken's tried in butter, 'to a turn,
An' corn pone's hot, an' buttermilk's jest
expiring,
Oh, it's then I love the music o' the tootin'
dinner-horn;
When the 'taters are in blossom an' the tassels
on the corn,
When the scorchin' sun o' summer pours down
on a feller's head,
'Till he thinks 'bout 'n' straw stack an' the
meddler's painted red,
When the dusty sweat's a pourin' down his
face into his eyes,
An' the taters are a buzzin' like a pantry
full of bees,
There's a mighty feelin' question like, a gas-
